RE: Account #1234567890

Evolutionary Collectors, Inc.:

Recently, your office contacted me regarding a debt for which you claim I am responsible. This is to advise you that I have doubts either about whether I ever incurred this debt, or whether the amount you are trying to collect is legitimate. Consequently, I dispute this debt or some portion of it.

Furthermore, any attempt to contact me at my place of employment would be extremely inconvenient, and there is good reason to believe my employer has a policy in place that forbids me from receiving calls from you. Don't ever call me at my place of employment.

Finally, if I have ever waived any rights under the Telephone Consumer Protection Act, 47 U.S.C. § 227 et seq. in any contract, other instrument, or by any other method, I hereby reinstate those rights, effective immediately. Also, I do not give you permission to record or monitor any conversations with me in the future, although please understand that I may, without further warning, electronically record any conversations with you unless you expressly state you wish me to stop, as I have done here.

Sincerely yours,

William Jennings Bryan
